PRESS RELEASE - for immediate release

Mary Ann Shallcross Smith, Democrat for State Representative, District 46 Lincoln/Pawtucket stated that it's time for leadership that cares about promoting economic development and creating new high-quality jobs for Rhode Island.

“We need to focus on creating business friendly conditions that will attract both large and small businesses to invest in our state. We also need to properly promote Rhode Island’s assets and natural resources which make our state a more desirable location for prospective businesses,” she said.

“Partnerships with our state colleges, both private and public, to help us promote job growth and to be models for giving our students the needed tools and opportunities to either start or join a Rhode Island business will ensure that our graduates can live and work in our state and continue to contribute to our state’s growth and economy. An educated workforce is the key to our success,” Shallcross Smith stated.

“I also believe that there is real opportunity to create initiatives to attract alternative energy power companies to Rhode Island, particularly those who manufacture wind turbines and solar panels, which would provide “green collar” jobs to our state,” she said.
